European Association of Communication Directors

Brussels, 18th February 2008

European Association of Communication Directors launches Regional Debates

In order to create a stronger and closer regionally-based network of communication between members, the EACD is going to launch a new form of communication platform: Regional Debates. These will take place in capital cities all over Europe and, thus, will be more easily accessible for EACD members.

Each debate will be hosted by regionally-based members of the EACD and will be moderated by two speakers. The content of each Regional Debate will be based around challenges faced and new initiatives implemented within the communications profession, and its future considering the regional context. They are based on case studies.

The first three Regional Debates are going to be held in:

- Vienna on March 14th of 2008
- Istanbul on March 20th of 2008
- Stockholm on April 3rd of 2008
